Happy New Year

As this is our first message for 2020, I'd like to wish everyone a happy and safe New Year.

We hope everyone has had a good break over the holiday period though I know that many locals are reluctant to travel or leave their properties due to the very dry conditions and threat of fires.

Bushfires

Like many in our community we are still coming to grips with the extent of the devastation caused by the bushfires which continue to impact so many parts of Australia.

Our thoughts are with the victims of the bushfires across the country and in particular, those brave RFS volunteers who lost their lives fighting the fires in recent weeks.

Our thoughts and prayers are with them, their colleagues, friends and families.

Project Update

Our team has been working through the submissions from the exhibition of the McPhillamys Environmental Impact Statement (EIS).

This month we received two more government agency submissions on the project: from the Department of Planning, Industry and Environment – Water (DPIE Water) and the Natural Resources Access Regulator (NRAR); and the NSW Rural Fire Service. These are the last of 20 government agency submissions.

We will continue to review the comments and suggestions put forward by the various agencies, organisations and members of the public, before responding formally in a Response to Submissions (RTS).

Carefully managing impacts

Regis is very mindful of the need to manage and mitigate any impacts that the project might have on our neighbours, downstream users and the environment.

The Response to Submissions will set out our approach to ensuring these issues are properly addressed. In the meantime, please get in touch if you have any questions or suggestions.
