Happy New Year

Hello and Happy New Year.

I'm pleased to be bringing you our fortnightly updates as part of my role managing external relations for the McPhillamys Project.

I know it's been a very bumpy start to the year for many in our community—thanks to COVID 19— and it's clear the virus will be with us for some time yet.

Our office is still operating and we're progressing on all fronts, though most of our team continue to work from home.

For any project questions or feedback the best way to get in

Being prepared

With the constant rain we've been having during spring and summer it's hard to imagine 2022 being at risk of a fire season like those we've experienced in the past.

But it's amazing how quickly things can change if the weather warms up and things start to dry out.

And the flipside of all this rain is that there is a lot of long grass and fuel about, if things do heat up.

With a number of land holdings in the local area we are constantly monitoring fire risk, and now (when it isn't urgent) is a good time to make sure fire plans are in place for houses or properties.

The Rural Fire Service (RFS) has good advice on preparing fire safety plans, which you will find on their website at:

<https://www.rfs.nsw.gov.au/plan-and-prepare>

If you don't have a fire plan already, it's well worth a look.
