

Project Update

*Tony McPaul
Manager
Special Projects*

Keeping locals up to date

I regularly get asked where things are up to with the McPhillamys Gold Project and people are often surprised at how lengthy and detailed the assessment process is.

Even though the uncertainty can be hard (especially for neighbours) it is reassuring that the process is so thorough.

As the project progresses we are meeting constantly with neighbours and other locals, to keep them up to date.

In recent weeks we've also been out and about meeting with local Councils, Blayney Rotary, Belubula Landholders Association and Regional Development Australia (Central West).

Our team continues to hold regular information stalls in local shopping centres so call in and say hello—and ask questions—if you see us around town.

Careers in mining

It was great to see lots of familiar faces at the NSW Mining Careers dinner, hosted by the NSW Minerals Council in Orange last week.

Over 100 students, teachers and parents from Blayney and the Central West came along to learn about the huge range of job and training opportunities in the mining industry.

Regis and other local mining and mining-related companies gave presentations and talked with the students about their options for working in the industry.

There are many different pathways into mining including trades, on-the-job training and university courses.

If you or someone you know is interested in a career in mining check out the NSW Mining careers page at:

<https://www.nswmining.com.au/education-and-careers>

Regards,

Tony McPaul
Manager Special Projects
Regis Resources

Above (top): Tony McPaul (Regis) and Jacquie Smith (NSW Training) and (bottom) Tim Kindred and Jess Grivas (Regis) at the Mining Careers Dinner.