Rehabilitating farm land

Modern mining has strict requirements for the rehabilitation of land and Regis adopts a best-practice approach to meeting those standards.

At McPhillamys, rehabilitation will be continuous throughout the life of the project. The aim of the project's rehabilitation strategy is to return disturbed land to a condition that is stable and sustainable for post-mining use.

Our rehabilitation of the McPhillamys drilling site (see right) is a good example of this approach. After a number of drilling programs the land has been restored to its earlier form and is currently used for cattle grazing.
