Staying in touch with our community

Staying in touch with the local community is an important part of our work at the McPhillamys Gold Project.

Even though the main approval process is over we know that people are keen to stay up to date on progress. In particular, local people remain very interested in environmental and social aspects of the project.

In this next phase our team is working on plans and strategies to meet the many (over 100) conditions imposed on the project by government and regulatory bodies.

A lot of that work involves consultation with neighbours, councils and other local stakeholders. We also meet regularly with groups such as the McPhillamys Community Consultative Committee to keep them up to date on progress.

Taking our mobile information stand to local events is another great way to keep people up to date. We recently had a great day out, meeting people at the Newbridge Winter Solstice Festival. The event attracted hundreds of locals and visitors.

If you or your organisation would like a briefing or information about McPhillamys please get in touch. Or come and say hello next time you see our stand at a local event.
